

Monitor of Engagement with the Natural Environment: The national survey on people and the natural environment

Annex: Summary data tables from the 2009-10 survey

First published 06 September 2010

Foreword

Natural England commission a range of reports from external contractors to provide evidence and advice to assist us in delivering our duties. The views in this report are those of the authors and do not necessarily represent those of Natural England.

Background

Although there is a growing evidence base about the benefits that people derive from contact with the natural environment, there is a lack of information about how and why people currently engage with the natural environment.

In the past, a series of surveys have been carried out by Government and its partners to track participation in leisure day visits. The Leisure Day Visits Survey Series (undertaken in 1994, 1996, 1998, 2002/03 and 2005) collected information on the extent of participation in leisure day visits and provided estimates of the volume of visits. Whilst these surveys included 'days out' in the countryside, they did not provide up to date and robust information on people's day to day use and enjoyment of the natural environment.

Natural England, Defra and the Forestry Commission therefore commissioned TNS Research International to undertake this survey.

The survey was commissioned in order to:

- Understand how people use, enjoy and are motivated to protect the natural environment.
- Provide data that monitors changes in use and enjoyment of the natural environment over time at a range of different spatial scales and for key groups within the population.

How will Natural England use the findings?

In relation to its remit for promoting public understanding, conservation and enjoyment of the natural environment, Natural England will use the findings to:

- Inform its own work, and that of other interested parties, to link it more closely to need.
- Evaluate the impact and effectiveness of this work.

Published alongside this Annex are:

- An annual report (NECR049) presenting headline findings for 2009-10.
- A technical report (NECR050) providing full details of the survey methodology including approaches to sampling, grossing and weighting, and estimates of confidence intervals.

Further reports are planned from the 2009-10 survey and will be available from the Natural England website.

The information within this report is categorised as 'Official Statistics', and has been produced and published according to arrangements approved by the UK Statistics Authority.
